December 15, 1980

To The Honorable Alfred G. Schroeder,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court,
and the justices of the Supreme Court:

In compliance with the provisions of Rule No. 1.03(c) of the Supreme Court, this annual report of the judicial business of the courts of Kansas for fiscal year ending June 30, 1980, is submitted.

This annual report would not be possible without the special effort made by the clerks of the district court in reporting case filings and case terminations. Again this year the clerks have discharged their responsibility with fidelity.

Respectfully,

Howard Schwartz

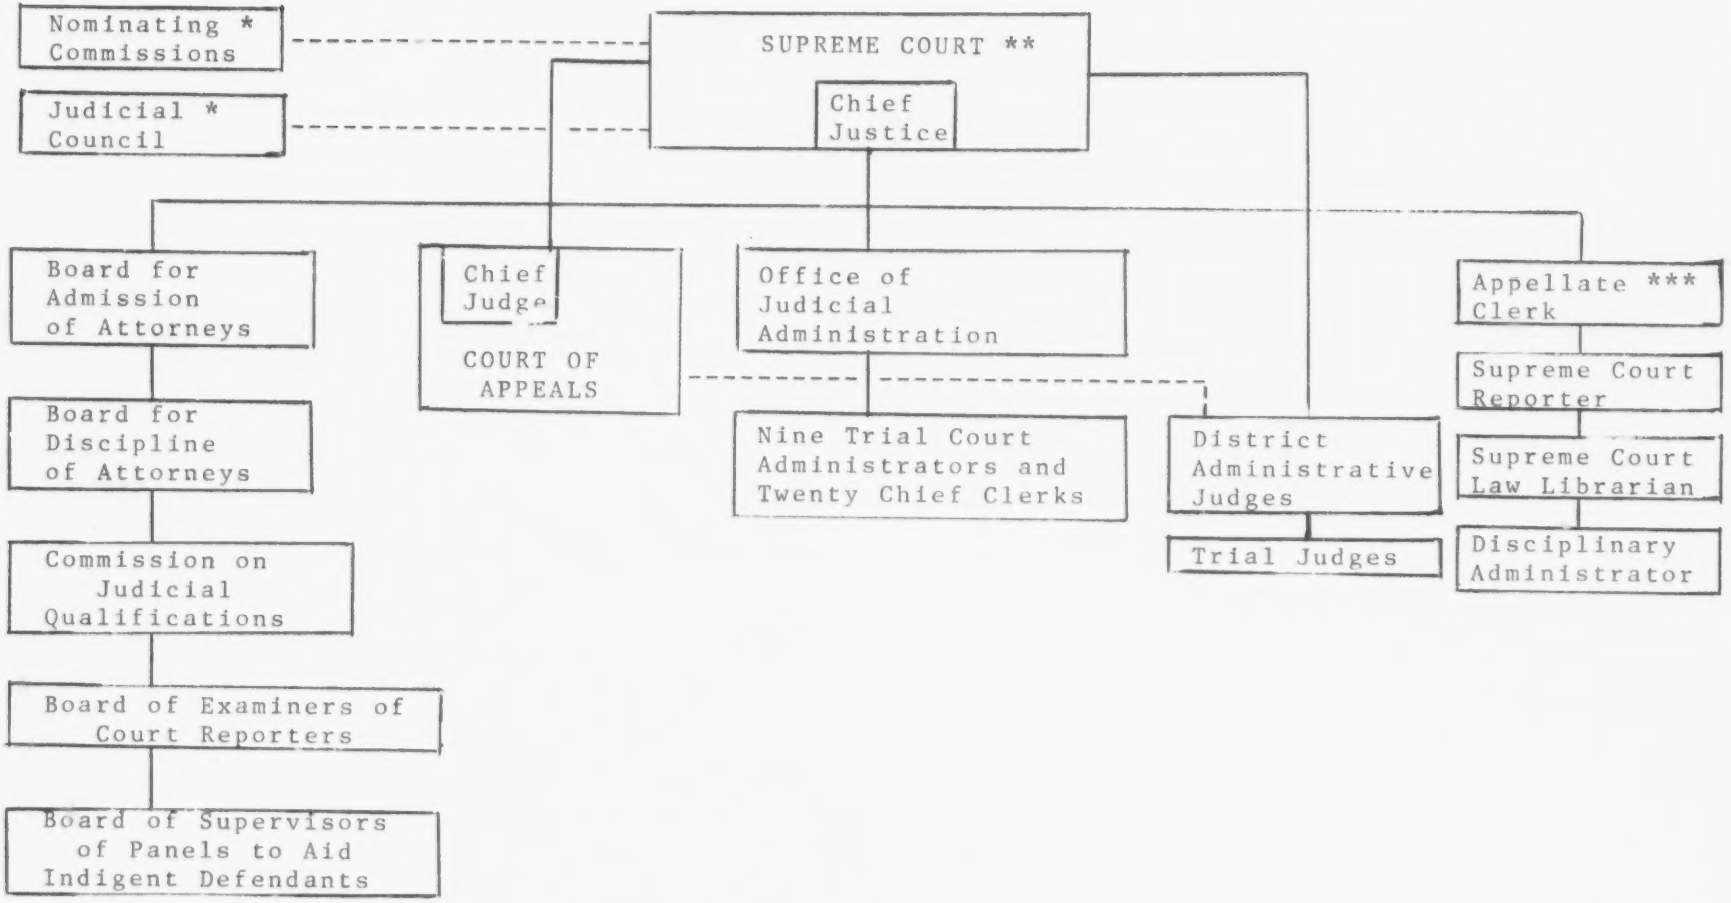
PREFACE

This year marks the third year of publication of the annual report in this format. Data comparison among these three years may be made with only minimal caution. The change in court structure in calendar year 1977 followed by significant changes in the caseload reporting system would make accurate data comparison from those earlier years exceedingly difficult.

This years report contains several additional graphics not included in reports from previous years. It is hoped that those graphics will aid the reader in interpreting the statistical data and contribute to a better understanding of the Kansas Court System.

SUPREME COURT ADMINISTRATIVE CHART



* The Judicial Council is independent of the Court System and conducts specialized research.

* The Nominating Commissions are independent of the Court System - The Clerk of the Appellate Courts provides staff support to the Commissions.

 Each Justice of the Supreme Court has administrative duties as Departmental Justice of one of six Judicial Departments consisting of from four to six Judicial Districts.

 The Appellate Clerk is the Clerk of the Supreme Court and also Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE KANSAS JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Kansas judicial system, consisting of district courts and the Supreme Court, was instituted with the advent of statehood in 1861. The next hundred years brought little structural change. Separate county courts of limited jurisdiciton heard probate, juvenile, minor civil, and traffic cases. Justices of the peace administered the law throughout much of the state.

Change began in the mid-1960's. The Office of Judicial Administrator was established in 1965 to assist the Supreme Court in exercising its administrative and supervisory responsibilities over the judicial system. In 1968, justices of the peace were abolished, in effect, by severely limiting their jurisdiction. Their former jurisdiction was transferred to county courts; and in most counties the functions of the probate, juvenile, and county courts were consolidated under one judge. In 1972, a new judicial article of the Kansas constitution was adopted. It brought many improvements, paving the way for unification of the trial courts and permitting the establishment of a court of appeals. A citizens' study committee was appointed in 1973 for the purpose of examining the judicial system and recommending changes to implement fully the judicial article.

The work of this committee ultimately resulted in the unification of the state's trial courts in January, 1977. Probate, juvenile, and county courts were abolished, as were magistrate-level courts of countywide jurisdiction. The jurisdicitions of these courts were consolidated into the district court. At the same time, a court of appeals was established to improve the judicial system's handling of its appellate caseload.

Change has not stopped with the functional unification of the trial court. In 1978, the legislature authorized the initiation of state funding of the personnel costs of the nonjudicial employees of the district courts. The legislation enacted provided for a gradual program of full state funding of these personnel costs. During the phase in program counties pay back to the state a decreasing proportion of district court personnel salaries. Effective July 1, 1981 counties no longer will be required to remit any of these personnel costs.

THE COURTS OF KANSAS

The Kansas Constitution provides that there shall be one court of justice divided into a supreme court, district courts, and other courts as provided by law. Statutory provisions which took effect in January 1977, established a court of appeals as an intermediate appellate court. These three courts constitute the unified state judicial system. Municipal courts exist as entities of the cities which establish them, but they have jurisdiction over ordinance violations only and, therefore, are not state courts. The constitution provides the supreme court with administrative authority over all courts in the state.

The Supreme Court

The Supreme Court is Kansas' highest court. It consists of seven justices, each of whom is selected by the governor. He appoints from a list of three qualified individuals submitted to him by the supreme court nominating commission. After the first year in office, a justice is subject to a retention vote in the next general election. If a majority of electors votes to retain the justice, he or she remains in office for a term of six years. Justices are subject to a similar retention vote at the conclusion of each term.

The justice who is senior in terms of continuous service is designated by the constitution as the chief justice, unless he declines or resigns the position. The chief justice exercises the administrative authority of the Supreme Court. It is his responsibility to implement and carry out the administrative rules and policies established by the court.

The Supreme Court is provided by the constitution with original jurisdiction in proceedings in quo warranto, mandamus, and habeas corpus. Its jurisdiction over direct appeals in criminal cases is limited to those involving the two most serious classes of felony or life imprisonment. Its appellate jurisdiction also extends to any case in which a Kansas or United States statute has been declared unconstitutional. The Court has discretionary power of review over decisions of the Court of Appeals, and may transfer cases from one court to the other. The Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction over the admission and discipline of attorneys. It also may retire, discipline, suspend, or remove for cause judges who fail to observe the Code of Judicial Conduct.

The Court of Appeals

The Court of Appeals is an intermediate appellate court. It consists of seven judges, each appointed in the same manner as Supreme Court justices. The same nominating commission serves for both courts. Court of Appeals judges must stand for retention election after the first year in office and, thereafter, at the conclusion of each four-year term. The chief judge of the Court is appointed by the Supreme Court.

The Court of Appeals sits in panels of three judges as well as en banc. Although Topeka is designated as the site of the Courts' principal offices, it is authorized by statute to hear oral arguments in any county courthouse in the state. In the interest of expediting the disposition of its caseload and in consideration of the sources of cases and other factors, the court travels extensively. Therefore, the three-judge panel is used frequently.

The Court of Appeals has jurisdiction over all appeals from the district court except those reviewable in the district court and those in which direct appeal to the Supreme Court is required. Writs of habeas corpus also may be prosecuted in the Court of Appeals. The Court may request the transfer to the Supreme Court of any case before it. Effective July 1, 1978, the court was provided exclusive jurisdiction over the review of orders or decisions of the state corporation commission in public utility rate cases.

The District Court

Since the unification of the courts in January, 1977, there are no state courts of limited or special jurisdiction. The state has a single trial court of general jurisdiction, the District Court. It is a court of record exercising both original jurisdiction over civil and criminal matters and limited appellate jurisdiction.

There are three types of judges of the District Court. District judges exercise the full power and authority of the Court. Associate district judges have jurisdiction similar to that of district judges, except that they lack jurisdiction over class actions and actions in quo warranto or mandamus. District magistrate judges have jurisdiction over probate and juvenile matters, misdemeanors, felony preliminary examinations and certain civil actions involving amounts of $5000 or less. The decisions of a district magistrate judge are appealable within the district court. Appeals from decisions of district or associate district judges go to the appellate courts.

The state is divided into twenty-nine judicial districts, comprising from one to seven counties. There are seven single-county districts and twelve districts of five or more counties. There is at least one district judge in each district but not all districts have associate district and district magistrate judges. As of June 30, 1980, there were 70 district judges, 67 associate district judges, and 74 district magistrate judges in the state.

Judges of the district court are selected in one of two ways. In twenty-two districts, the voters have approved nonpartisan selection of judges by a district nominating commission with appointment by the governor. A judge thus appointed must stand for retention election after one year in office. If a majority of votes cast favors his or her retention, the judge then serves a full four-year term. Thereafter, he or she is subject to a retention vote at the conclusion of each four-year term.

In the remaining seven districts, judges run for office on a partisan ballot. Judges so elected serve terms of four years.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE COURTS

The Kansas Constitution provides the Supreme Court with "general administrative authority over all courts in this state." In exercising this authority, the Court establishes the rules and policies governing the administration of the judicial system.

The chief justice serves as the administrative head of the system. As such, his supervisory responsibilities extend to all aspects of system management. He is empowered by statute to delegate his responsibility and authority as necessary to insure the smooth and efficient operation of the system.

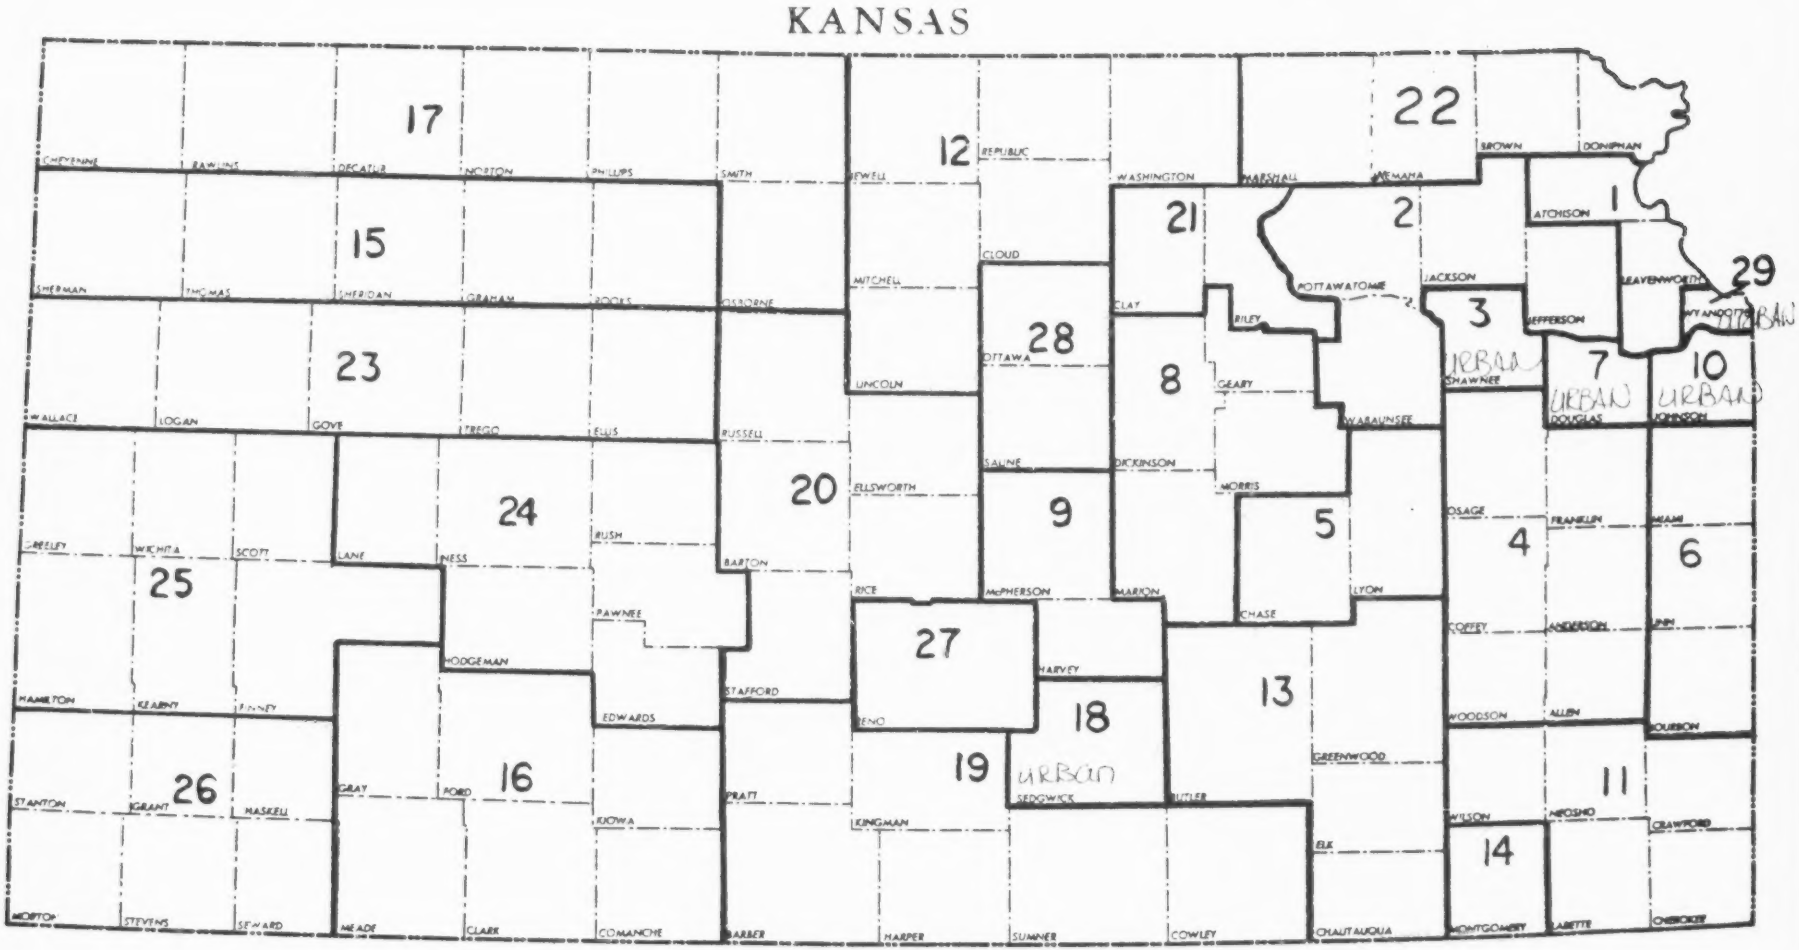
The statutes further provide that the Court and each justice may have additional powers and duties prescribed by law. The Judicial Department Reform Act of 1965 divided the judicial districts into departments. Currently, there are six, each of which is assigned to a justice who is responsible for the supervision of all administrative activities within his or her department. Each is given the power to assign judges from one district to another and to require such reports as necessary to keep abreast of the business of the courts.

The management responsibility at the district level is placed with an administrative judge. Appointed by the Supreme Court from among the district judges in each district, the position is responsible for all clerical and administrative functions in the district. The administrative judge also manages the judicial caseload and directs the assignment of cases within his district.

The administrative structure of the court system places the responsibility for management at each level with judges. As a consequence, judges who fulfill these administrative roles have less time available to perform their adjudicative functions. Kansas has recognized the need for professional administrative staffs to aid judges in managing the system at both state and district levels.

Office of Judicial Administration

The Judicial Department Reform Act of 1965 created the position of Judicial Administrator who is appointed by and serves at the pleasure of the Chief Justice. The administrator is responsible for the implementation of the rules and policies of the Court as they apply to the operation and administration of the courts. Other duties may be prescribed by law or specified by the Court. The statutes provide that all state expenditures for district court operations be approved by the judicial administrator and, further, that all district court wage and salary claims to be paid by the state be certified by him.



KANSAS JUDICIAL DISTRICTS

The duties delegated to the Judicial Administrator by the Supreme Court have expanded his role beyond the relatively narrow statutory delineation. They include:

- examination of district court dockets and determination of need for judicial assistance;
- compilation of statistics on activities of all state courts and preparation of annual report;
- assessment of periodic need for interdistrict assignment of judges with appropriate recommendation to departmental justices;
- supervision and examination of administrative practices in district courts;
- administrative guidance to the district courts;
- preparation and administration of the budget under the direction of the Supreme Court;
- training of judicial and nonjudicial personnel;
- representation of the Court to the legislative and executive branches and to the public.

The staff of the Office of Judicial Administration performs its duties in the functional areas described in the following narrative:

Fiscal Operations

The Office of Judicial Administration is responsible for the administration of the budgeting, payroll, and general accounting activities of the Judicial Branch. Extensive liaison is maintained with executive branch agencies which cooperate in these endeavors. Other fiscal responsibilities include: inventory maintenance for the state office; financial record keeping for the appellate courts, the Appellate Clerk's Office, and other departments within the judicial system; and financial reporting for these offices.

During Fiscal 1979, a major new dimension was added to this operation with the assumption of the district court nonjudicial employees into the state judicial personnel and payroll system. This addition of approximately 1,200 employees mushroomed the fiscal responsibility of the office by several million dollars.

The state also funds a program to provide court-appointed counsel and other necessary legal assistance to poor persons who are charged with felonies. The Judicial Administrator is responsible for the administration of the expenditures for the program under the guidance of the Board of Supervisors of Panels to Aid Indigent Defendants. He certifies attorneys' claims for payment and authorizes payments as appropriate. Included in the program are public defender offices in three districts; funds are also provided to a nonprofit corporation which provides legal assistance to indigent inmates of correctional facilities. Total expenditures from the fund to Aid Indigent Defendants were $2,359,710 in FY 1980.

Personnel Management

The Office of Judicial Administration is responsible for managing the judiciary's statewide personnel system. The scope of this duty was expanded overwhelmingly during fiscal 1979 with the addition of the nonjudicial employees of the district court. An explanation of the process required to accomplish this task is provided in a subsequent segment of this report.

The responsibility for statewide coordination of the personnel function thus rests with this office. Specific duties include:

- recommending policy and procedures to the Supreme Court and implementing such as directed;
- establishing and maintaining position classifications;
- recruiting and screening applicants for state-level positions;
- providing assistance to district courts in recruiting and hiring;
- maintaining personnel records;
- insuring that equal employment opportunity and affirmative action policies are carried through.

Education and Training

The Office of Judicial Administration takes a major role in the development and coordination of training programs for court personnel. The focus of the training effort is on: improving judicial and administrative functions and procedures; interpreting statutory responsibilities and requirements; and improving individual skills and job performance.

The office aids in the development of major statewide conferences each year for judicial and nonjudicial personnel. In addition, seminars on special topics are conducted throughout the year for juvenile probation staff, court transcriptionists, court reporters, clerks, chief clerks and court administrators, municipal judges, administrative judges and other judges of the district court. An orientation program is presented for new judges. The staff also coordinates the out-of-state training activities of both judicial and other staff personnel.

The assimilation of courts of limited jurisdiction into the district court under unification brought with it a requirement for certification of nonlawyer judges by the Supreme Court. The Office of Judicial Administration provides the staff function for the committee of judges which has developed, and now maintains, a reference manual and the certification examination as required by the Court. Moreover, the administrator's staff coordinates specialized instruction for these judges and the administration of the examination.

Assistance to the Trial Courts

The Judicial Administrator has the responsibility for improving the management of the district courts in aid of the administrative judges of each district. The administrative assistance provided to the courts includes: analysis and development of improved managerial procedures and practices; maintenance of reference manuals; provision and analysis of information affecting court operations; revision of district court budget forms; and staff support in development of the court personnel rules. The recommendations for improvements in these areas take many forms, from memoranda to individual clerks to policy suggestions for administrative judges to proposed administrative orders of statewide application.

Compilation and Assessment of Court Caseload Information

The Judicial Administrator is charged with the responsibility for compiling statistical information and producing the annual report on court activity. In fulfillment of this obligation, his staff compiles annualized data for the appellate courts and administrates an extensive system for the reporting of all cases filed in the district court. This caseload reporting system constitutes a management information system, the primary uses of which are to:

- determine composition of caseload, as to type;
- determine whether caseload backlog exists and, if so, its composition;
- pinpoint and examine trends in filings and terminations;
- monitor age of pending cases;
- assess causes of delay in case disposition;
- forecast caseload;
- provide data on court workload;
- determine need for additional or fewer permanent personnel
- determine need for temporary assignment of personnel from one court to another.

The clerk of the district court in each county is responsible for the accurate and timely reporting of all cases. The Office of Judicial Administration provides detailed instructions and conducts training sessions periodically to explain reporting procedures, answer questions, and solve problems. It also is responsible for the development, production, and distribution of various monthly and quarterly reports which provide management information for the administrative staff, district administrators, clerks, judges, and justices.

Trial Court Administration

To aid in managing district court activities, administrative judges are empowered by the Supreme Court to appoint either chief clerks or trial court administrators. Of the twenty-nine districts, nine are served by trial court administrators, with the remaining twenty served by a district court clerk who has been designated as chief clerk. In either case, it is the duty of the holder of that position to assist the administrative judge in carrying out the nonjudicial functions of the court.

Four of the nine administrators are located in the four largest counties, which are themselves districts. Two administrators are in a five county district, one in a four county district, one in a two county district and the remaining administrator is in a six county district. In general, court administrators are expected to have professional training in the field of management and their deployment through the system thus far has been limited to those districts which have felt the strongest need for these abilities. Although the technical qualifications for chief clerk are not so restrictive, in many districts that position functions as a full-fledged administrator. Chief clerks and trial court administrators are the focus for many of the requirements placed on the district courts by the Supreme Court. It is largely they who bear the responsibility, under the direction of the administrative judge, for managing day-to-day court operations at the local level.

The Appellate Courts

Because of the establishment of the Court of Appeals in January, 1977, and the attendant changes in appellate practice, comparisons of caseload data across that point in time are limited. Comparisons of fiscal year 1979 and 1980 data can be made readily.

Below is a table showing combined appellate court caseload, including original actions, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980. Comparing these figures with those from fiscal 1979 reveals an increase in appellate court activity. In fiscal 1980, 1,089 cases were commenced in both courts, an increase of 12% of the fiscal 1979 total of 970. The total number of cases disposed of rose slightly -- 5%, from 940 dispositions in 1979 to 989 in 1980. Also there was a growth in number of opinions rendered. In fiscal 1979, there were 680 cases disposed of by opinion. In fiscal 1980, this figure rose to 694, an increase of 2%.

THE CASELOAD INFORMATION SYSTEM

The unification of the state trial courts in January, 1977, necessitated major revisions to the caseload reporting mechanisms in use at that time. There had been separate systems for the district courts and for the limited and special jurisdiction courts. Effective July 1, 1977, a new set of forms was implemented for the reporting of all cases filed in the district court. Procedures for use of these forms retained the diversity based on case type that had been in existence under the former court structure.

There have been no major changes to the caseload information system since 1977. General jurisdiction cases are reported within the segment of the system which uses a computer to store and summarize data. This segment may be described as transaction-based, in that the reporting information on an individual case is triggered by specific events in the life of that case--its filing or disposition. Cases reported in this manner include all non-traffic criminal cases, all regular civil cases, including domestic relations actions, and all limited civil actions, excluding small claims.

The second segment of the caseload information system relies entirely upon manual processes. Generally, it is the special jurisdiction cases which are reported and summarized in this segment. The reporting forms, prepared quarterly, are summaries of individual case types. Twenty cases are reported per form and certain information is provided about each case both on filing and on termination. Cases reported within this segment are: formal juvenile cases, probate cases of all types, small claims, traffic cases, and other miscellaneous cases.

The statistical tables containing district court data constitute the bulk of this annual report. The tables comprise information from both segments of the caseload reporting system. General information on all types of cases has been provided. However, much editing has been done and the complete statistical detail available is portrayed in only a few tables which depict statewide caseload activity.

Two years ago marked the first revision of the annual report in more than a decade. This year's report has not been changed significantly in format from that for fiscal year 1978; but the same caveats regarding the data apply. The modifications to the report format and statistical portrayals, when coupled with the changes which occured in the judicial branch and in the caseload information system in calendar year 1977, limit the comparability of the three most recent annual reports with those from previous years. Reasonable comparisons between fiscal year 1978, fiscal year 1979 and fiscal year 1980 data may be made, but any comparison with prior years should be made with extreme caution.

PREFACE

The charts and graphs that follow this page graphically depict some of the statistical data included in this report and assist the reader in observing year to year caseload changes. For the serious student though the charts and graphs are an aid, not a substitute for careful review of the statistical data in this report.

The graph on page 33 is a comparison of case filings for FY '80 compared to FY '79. Traffic cases are excluded from this chart.

The chart on page 35 shows the "mix" of cases filed in the courts of Kansas in FY '80, again excluding traffic cases.

The graph on page 41 compares case filings, terminations, and pending cases, civil and criminal, for a three year period. Even though civil case terminations have increased in each of these years the number of pending cases has increased slightly as case filings have continued to grow. An actual decrease in pending criminal cases was recorded in FY '80.

The graph on page 42 compares the number of major cases pending in the courts of Kansas as of 6-30-80 with the same date a year earlier.

The chart on page 46 shows an analysis of disposition for each of the major civil case categories.

FOOTNOTES TO CIVIL CASE SUMMARY TABLE

1. Included in this category are: product liability cases; personal injury cases arising from auto accidents; medical malpractice actions; property damage suits; and all other torts.

2. Included in this category are: personal property suits, small claims and tax appeals; actions under KSA 60-1507; habeas corpus actions; workmen's compensation cases; and all other regular civil actions excluding domestic matters.

3. This category includes divorce, annulment, and separate maintenance cases.

4. "Limited Actions" are those involving claims of $5,000 or less, filed under the Kansas Code of Civil Procedure for Limited Actions. (Prior to July 1, 1979, the maximum was $3,000.)

5. Included in this category are: personal property suits; appropriate small claim case appeals; and all other limited actions.

6. During the last few fiscal years, there have been changes in the definitions of this category. Effective with fiscal 1979, for the first time, formal court trials were separated as a disposition type from contested cases which did not result in trial.

October 20, 1981

To The Honorable Alfred G. Schroeder,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court
and the justices of the Supreme Court:

In compliance with the provisions of Rule No. 1.03(c) of the Supreme Court, this annual report of the judicial business of the courts of Kansas for fiscal year ending June 30, 1981, is submitted.

This annual report would not be possible without the special effort made by the clerks of the district court in reporting case filings and case terminations. Their contributions to information in this annual report is significant, and their efforts are noted with commendation.

Respectfully,

Howard Schwartz

PREFACE

This year marks the fourth year of publication of the annual report in this format. Data comparison among these four years may be made with only minimal caution. The change in court structure in calendar year 1977 followed by significant changes in the caseload reporting system would make accurate data comparison from those earlier years exceedingly difficult.

In previous years the annual report contained various graphics to assist in interpreting the statistical data. The publication this year, for the first time, of a companion volume, the executive summary, precluded the need and expense for graphics in this report.

FOOTNOTES TO CIVIL CASE SUMMARY TABLE

1. Included in this category are: product liability cases; personal injury cases arising from auto accidents; medical malpractice actions; property damage suits; and all other torts.

2. Included in this category are: personal property suits, small claims and tax appeals; actions under K.S.A. 60-1507; habeas corpus actions; workmen's compensation cases; and all other regular civil actions excluding domestic matters.

3. This category includes divorce, annulment, and separate maintenance cases.

4. "Limited Actions" are those involving claims of $5,000 or less, filed under the Kansas Code of Civil Procedure for Limited Actions. (Prior to July 1, 1979, the maximum was $3,000.)

5. Included in this category are: personal property suits; appropriate small claim case appeals; and all other limited actions.

6. During the last few fiscal years, there have been changes in the definitions of this category. Effective with fiscal 1979, for the first time, formal court trials were separated as a disposition type from contested cases which did not result in trial.

THE APPELLATE COURTS

THE APPELLATE COURTS

Because of the establishment of the Court of Appeals in January, 1977, and the attendant changes in appellate practice, comparisons of caseload data across that point in time are limited. Comparisons of fiscal year 1980 and 1981 data can be made readily.

Below is a table showing combined appellate court caseload, including original actions, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1981. Comparing these figures with those from fiscal 1980 reveals an increase in appellate court activity. In fiscal 1981, 1,097 cases were commenced in both courts, a decrease of 1.9% of the fiscal 1980 total of 1,118. The total number of cases disposed of rose slightly -- 15.3% from 989 dispositions in 1980 to 1,140 in 1981. Also there was a growth in number of opinions rendered. In fiscal 1980, there were 694 cases disposed of by opinion. In fiscal 1981, this figure rose to 827, an increase of 19.2%
